THE FIRST ANNUAL

ARKADUCEUS

PUBLICATION
OF

UNIVERSITY of ARKANSAS
SCHOOL of MEDICINE

LITTLE ROCK

DEDICATION

. . . . to the people of the State of Arkansas

HISTORY

The School of Medicine of the University of Arkansas was organized in 1879 as the Medical Department of the Arkansas Industrial University, now the University of Arkansas. In 1911 the Board of Trustees of the University persuaded the College of Physicians and Surgeons, a privately owned school in Little Rock, to merge with the University of Arkansas. The alumni of the College of Physicians and Surgeons were elected to membership in the Alumni Association of the School of Medicine of the University of Arkansas.

In 1935 a new building of six stories was erected. This building accommodates the laboratory departments, the outpatient departments, and also the offices of admission and faculty. The new building was provided with new furnishings and equipment throughout.

Since 1939 the General Assemblies have increased the appropriations of the School of Medicine, thus making possible great expansion in its services and facilities. In 1939 the University Hospital, formerly the Little Rock City Hospital, was acquired, expanded, and remodeled. The clinical facilities were further enlarged by new construction between the medical school building and the hospital which houses activities common to both.

Since the autumn of 1946, present facilities and personnel have been widely expanded and plans are well underway for the establishment of a State Medical Center on the grounds of the State Hospital for Nervous Diseases, which will increase many fold the services of the institution to the people of Arkansas.

FOREWORD

This book is by and for the students of the University of Arkansas School of Medicine. It is the first to be named THE ARKADUCEUS and the second to be attempted, the last being in 1941. Since it is for the Student Body, it is produced from their viewpoint. The use of more familiar names or nicknames of faculty members may be considered improper, but, since in the nightly bull sessions these are the terms used and by which they will be remembered in the years to come, we consider these more appropriate.

Changes in personnel throughout the school and hospital have resulted in errors as of the date of release of THE ARKADUCEUS but at the time these sections were set up, they were correct.

The formal section on Faculty is devoted only to the full time staff, but we're sorry that pictures of every physician who has anything at all to do with our training can not be included. We do not appreciate them any the less for it.

Our fervent hope is that this, The First Annual ARKADUCEUS will be taken literally and that there will be those in future years who have the desire to make this ARKADUCEUS outstanding only because it is first.

Here's to many bigger and better than this.

A WORD OF THANKS

Well, there it is! I hope you like it. Remember an effort such as this cannot possibly be the result of one man's work. So, I'd like to take this opportunity to thank those persons without whose help it could not have come about.

First, to Mr. William T. Stover whose early and great financial support made the publication a certainty;

To Clayton Woodard, Jake Ellis, Henry Hawkins, and Harry Whittaker whose untiring work and unswerving faith in the success of the Arkaduceus were a bright light during many black moments;

To Dr. Jack Weatherly, Class of '46, for his cartoons which, I'm sure, are the outstanding contribution of the entire production;

To Charles R. Turner, Vincent Marques, and the Little Rock High School Camera Club for their flashing bulbs which recorded the previously seen epochs of history;

To our patrons and advertisers who by their early donations and subscriptions showed good faith and confidence;

And last, but not least, to the Student Body, Faculty, and other hospital personnel whose continued interest in the progress of the Arkaduceus kept us all on the ball.

My profound thanks,

Ollie Feigenbaum
